Real Estate and Construction Conflicts on the Horizon? – Creative and Collaborative Solutions

Join presenters from Michael Best's Real Estate and Real Estate Construction team, along with President of The Mandel Group Ian Martin, on Wednesday, August 5, to hear about what the next three to nine months have in store for real estate and construction and the tensions that might arise. This includes a potential second wave and slow recovery. Financial, performance problems and delays can scrub a project or create critical tensions. This program will discuss the advantages of a triage experience that provides real estate and construction professionals advice from business, finance, real estate, construction, insurance, public relations, and more, resulting in a collaborative plan with creative and less expensive options.
